

THE CENTRAL RECORD

FIFTEENTH YEAR.

LANCASTER, KY., FRIDAY, JANUARY 27 1905.

NUMBER 44

Local Notes.

The thermometer registered six below zero Wednesday morning.

The Geiger store room is being repaired and he will soon be back in his regular quarters. He is now located in the Sweeney room.

Nothing is so hard as the start. If you once begin to save money you will find it comparatively easy to continue. Open an account with the Provident Saving Bank and Trust Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and watch it grow. It will be handy for you when in time of need.

There was a fairly good crowd in town Monday, but, as is usual on January court day, little business was transacted. Most all the farmers heard the speeches on the tobacco question and the weed was the principal topic of conversation all day. No stock sales of consequence.

Services at Christian Church.
An examination of the furnace was made at the Christian church, Tuesday, and it was decided to put in new ones. Telegrams were sent for the very latest and best patterns, and they will be installed at once. On this account, the regular services next Sunday will be held in the lecture room of the church. Preaching at 10:45 a. m. and 7 p. m.

A Rare Opportunity.
Mr Pettus Webster, who is in the Fox Studio, Lancaster, every Friday, is doing some splendid work, and we hear his pictures complimented on all sides. Mr Webster is not only one of the best photographers in the South, but is a gentleman who has made many friends during his visits to Lancaster. He is here every Friday, rain or shine, and if you want a first class photograph, visit the Fox Studio, on North Side Public Square on those days.

Back To His First Love.
A special from Washington to the Louisville Times says: The report comes via Kentucky that Harry Giovannioli will return to Danville some time this spring or summer and start a rattling county paper there. He will not confirm the gossip further than to say that if he concludes to quit the Government service he will certainly go back to the newspaper business, and that he would rather run a successful paper in Boyle county than anywhere else "on th face of the earth." Mr. Giovannioli has been private secretary to the Hon. John W. Yerkes for nearly four years, and, while he and his chief are on the most amicable terms, he thinks he has been in the Government service long enough and "hankers" after his old habits.
Mr. Giovannioli is one of the most capable newspaper men in the entire State and has a wide acquaintance.

Improvements on L & N.
The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company has begun the construction of steel bridges to replace the old wooden bridges on the Kentucky Central division of the line. It is estimated that the company will expend $2,000,000 in improvements of the Kentucky Central division this year, in cutting out the curves and straightening the track. During the last six months of last year the company had heavy steel rails laid on this line of the track, and this work is being continued on through to Knoxville. There is a line of road constructed out of Knoxville to Atlanta and when it is completed the company will have a direct line from Cincinnati to Florida.
—Register.

The Next Speaker.
With the assemblage of the legislature for the purpose of selecting a site for our new State Capitol, doubtless there is arising some conjecture as to whom will be the officers of the next General Assembly. The most important of these and by long odds the most eagerly sought post, is the Speaker and the Speakership of the House.

The gentleman who wields the gavel over this deliberative body should possess qualifications of the first order. He should be a thorough Parliamentarian, of sound judgment and fair and impartial mind, a profound student of the law, and a man of executive ability. He should have firmness of decision and facility of speech, in short a Speaker who is at once an ornament and an honor to the seat he fills.

Such requisites are combined in the person of a son of this county, who has been prominently mentioned in connection with the office. His services during the past session won him praise from every one; his superb gift of oratory has enchanted all who ever heard him from the rostrum, his qualifications are unquestioned, and we are certain that our legislators will make no mistake in recognizing the eminent fitness of the Hon. Richard W. Miller, of Madison, Kentucky Register.

We believe we are well enough acquainted with you and that you are well enough acquainted with us to share each other's confidence and esteem. We believe our customers are well satisfied with their treatment and are our best friends. We believe most people prefer a home institution.

W. R. Gott & Co., the Richmond poultry men, have rented Dr. Kincaid's new house and opened a poultry, hide and fur-buying establishment.

Drs Acton and Kinnaird removed a good portion of Bynam Pointer's skull which was struck on the head with an iron poker by Speed Lydford at a dance at the latter's home, is reported to be in a very serious condition.

The will of the late Dr H C Herring was admitted to probate in the county court Monday. The property was left to his wife during her life. He named his son, Mr Fisher Herring, as administrator, who qualified as such Monday.

Big Barn Burns.
The large tobacco barn of Silas Moss, this side of Hubble, was destroyed by fire Tuesday. The origin is not known, but the supposition is it caught from a pipe some hand was smoking. About $1,000 worth of tobacco, some corn, implements, two calves and other stuff went up in smoke. Mr. Moss only had a small insurance on the building, and the loss is a large one.

Still Fond of Old Kentucky.
In remitting for his Record, Mr. Chas. T. Smith writes from Walcott, Ind., that he looks forward to the paper's visits with the greatest pleasure, and adds: "We are located in the corn belt of this state. We have had an exceedingly nice winter with very little rain, which means good roads, which are as scarce as hen's teeth in Kentucky. I gathered my crop of corn, about 7,000 bushels, and got it on the market without any rain, and I am ten miles from market. This country is nice for farming, being level, but the garden spot of the world is 'Old Kentucky'."

Judge J C Hemphill has a stalk of corn 16 feet in length, which grew on the Leavell place at mouth of Sugar Creek. The ear grew eleven feet from the ground. He says the crop averaged 174 barrels to the acre. The stalk is at the National Bank.

Mr S. B. Henry, superintendent of the Lancaster Cemetery, tells The Record there were fifty-one interments there during last year. Of this number, seventeen were children. This number is a little above the average. One year it was exactly fifty-two or one a week.

Notice.
The full attendance of the Garrard county Democratic committee is requested to meet at one o'clock, p. m., on Saturday, January 28th, 1905, at the Garrard county court room in Lancaster, Ky. Business of great importance to be transacted. This Jan'y 23, 1905.
A. C. Bowling, Chm.
G. B. Swinebroad, Secty.

The Editor's Career.
The stork disappears and we look into the cradle and behold a male child. After running the gauntlet of measles, mumps, and chickenpox he enters school. At the age of ten he is a red-headed, freckle faced boy, and the terror of the neighborhood. At 12 he is an apprentice in a printing office. At 18 he has acquired two cases of long primer and an army press, and is the editor of a country newspaper. At 20 he is married. At 30 he is bald-headed, stoop shouldered, and the father of a large family. At 35 he is a corpse in a cheap pine coffin, and as 500 delinquent subscribers file past his bier for the last look, they are heard to say "He was a good man, but he couldn't save his money."

Important Meeting.
The ladies of the Baptist church are cordially urged to meet with Mrs Ellis, 2 p. m., Monday, January 30th, for the purpose of talking over our Mission work and organizing a Missionary Society. 2t

Don't Butt In.
When you see a fellow man, Quietly playing his own hant, Doing the very best he can, Don't butt in.

All have troubles of their own, Probably more than you have known, Pass on—let them alone— Don't butt in.

You can't do them any good, Wouldn't do it if you could, Couldn't do it if you would, Don't butt in.

Friends fall out every day, And would make up right away, If away from them you stay, Don't butt in.

If your friends go on a lark, Spend the day at Lakeside Park, And stay out till after dark, Don't butt in.

When your friends a-fishing go, And say the fish weighed so and so, It won't be the truth you know, Don't butt in.

If the conversation don't suit you, Wait until the speaker's through, You may learn something new, Don't butt in.

On your journey here below, Through this world of joy and woe, You'll be tempted where'er you go, But don't butt in. —Ex.

BURLEY TOBACCO GROWERS.

Money Ready to Make Success of Organization as Soon as a Few More Contracts are Made.

Never in the history of the county has there been so much "tobacco talk" as has done on the streets court day, nor have we ever known the raisers to be so deeply interested as at present. Tobacco raising has been on the increase for some time, and Garrard farmers have found there is as good money in it as can be realized from any crop they produce.

As is well known, the "trust" formed and was proceeding to gobble up the weed at its own figures. Recently a number of leading raisers concluded to make war on the trust, pool their own interests, so to speak, and secure better prices for their crops. This resulted in the organization of "The Burley Tobacco Raisers' Company," which was incorporated "for the purpose of establishing a fair, stable price on a free and open market for the sale of Burley Tobacco, thereby promoting the interest of all who may co-operate with said company." To accomplish this, the company made contracts with growers to take their crops at uniform prices, according to grade and arranged that each grower receive for his tobacco his pro rata part of any profit which the company may realize thereon in excess of the schedule prices provided.

To secure enough money to do this, Eastern capitalists were called upon and agreed to finance the affair, not, however, until a certain amount of tobacco was secured or contracted for. The raisers went to work and secured contracts for the necessary amount, basing their estimate on 1,250 pounds to the acre. When final arrangements for closing the deal were commenced, the parties who were to furnish the funds announced that their estimate was upon the estimate of 1,000 to the acre, and demanded that the Growers Company bring in contracts for the additional number of pounds. They gave the growers until the 2nd day of February to deliver the goods, and the necessary amount has almost been found.

Messrs. Glave Goddard and C B Sullivan, Jr., of Mercer county, were here Monday and addressed a large crowd at the court house, in behalf of the growers, fully setting forth the advantage the raiser will derive by making a contract with the Growers Company, and received much substantial encouragement. The time is short, and it is very important that those raisers who have not given their support to the movement, fall in with the procession and thus help bring good to not only themselves but to every tobacco raiser in the state. If we succeed now, we succeed for all time to come. The grower sets the price, not the buyer. Remember it is the farmers movement so help at once.

"My Old Kentucky Home."
Mr. M. F. Hetherington, who was formerly engaged in the newspaper business at Lebanon, but who for the past three or four years has been at Miami, Fla., recently disposed of his interest in the business and will return to Lebanon in the spring to again engage in the newspaper business. His many friends in Kentucky are glad that he is coming back to them. We were all sure that he would soon grow weary of the orange blossoms and sunshine of Florida. They became too monotonous. Here in Kentucky we can throw snowballs to—lay and go fishing to-morrow, wear furs in the morning, shirtwaists in the afternoon. We have queens in cabins, boss-pisto's 12 hip pocket, wines in the running brooks, and good in everything. (They haven't got 'em in Florida.) To a Kentuckian the old Kentucky Home looms up like a ten dollar gold piece in the palm of a pauper. It matters not where he is, it matters not what the season may be—he sees in memory the green vines o'er the door, the wide rose by the garden gate, the Ben Davis apple tree in the orchard, and behold the laughing faces of a thousand old friends, and—if he is not in the penitentiary, he's coming back. He won't stay away—he can't stay away. There's a sort of a something behind him pushing him back toward the Kentucky shore. When you have been away from home did you never go out into the open and let the eye measure to that blue spot in the skies where you think home ought to be? If you ever did, we'll wager you have seen a pretty hand in a band of lilies beckoning you. And hardly before you know what you are doing you've got your satchel packed and bought a ham sandwich and a railroad ticket. A Kentucky friend of ours once went to Southern California to spend the winter, and one day when he and a party of friends were out drinking in the myriads of beauties which Providence so lavishly bestowed upon that land he was asked by a friend, as they were driving by a fruit forest, with its thousands of blooming trees, if that were not about the prettiest sight he had ever seen. He emphatically replied, "No!" "What have you ever seen that was prettier?" his friends asked. "A thorn tree and a huckleberry bush upon a hillside in Kentucky," he replied.—Springfield Sun.

CENTRAL RECORD.

Issued Weekly. $1.00 per Year.

LOUIS LANDRAM.

Entered at the Post Office in Lancaster, Ky., as Second-Class Mail Matter.

Lancaster, Ky., January, 27 1905

It now looks as though the special session of the Legislature, called to select a suitable site for the new million dollar capitol, will do nothing but kill a lot of time and spend some money for the people. The thing to do is give the people a chance to vote that the seat of government be moved to Lexington, where it rightfully belongs.

The craft rejoices with Bro. Lew Brown, of the Harrodsburg Democrat, who has just bought and moved into a handsome residence in that city. No man deserves greater success than does this able, gentlemanly and beloved newspaper man.

The story comes from Chicago of a citizen of that city having thirteen wives. Just think of thirteen pairs of cold feet stuck into a fellow's back these cold nights. That man is a hero.

Land, Stock, Crops.

A Mason county man who keeps tab on the weather says the drouth in Kentucky lasted 136 days.

At Louisville was sold Wednesday the prize hoghead of Burley tobacco that was shown at the world's Fair. It brought $3.50 per hundred.

The Todd County Tobacco Planters' Association decided upon a reduction of acreage, the amount to be cultivated by each member not to exceed seven and one-half acres to the hundred acres owned by him.

Mordecai Myers sold a pair of two-year-old mules to a North Carolina man for $315. Robert Karkick bought of H. C. Howell 39 acres of land and improvements on Grassy Lick pike, for $4,400.—Mt. Sterling Sentinel Democrat.

Mr. Norman Hambrick sold to Mr. E. W. Hughes his crop of tobacco as follows: 15,000 pounds at $11.50; 20,000 pounds at $11 and 25,000 at $10.—Georgetown Times.

We cash checks drawn on any Bank. If you want to send money away; we will attend to it for you. If you want to open only a small account for the convenience of paying little bills by checks, this institution is at your service. Bank of Bryantsville.

At the opening sale of the Burley loose Tobacco Warehouse in Lexington Monday 335,000 pounds were sold at an average of $10.25 per hundred. The highest figures obtained were $13.75 per hundred, and the lowest $4.50. Many of the piles were sold at the intermediate prices, ranging from $8 to $12 and there were few rejections. Many buyers were present. J. A. Downard, of Cincinnati, was the largest buyer and the Continental a close second.

Mrs. W. S. Wigham, of Lincoln, would be glad to know if any lady in this part of the state can beat her record for 1904. She sold $800 worth of strawberries, $57.70 worth vegetables, $61.80 worth of eggs. She milked three cows 9 months of the year and 5 cows the remaining 3 months and sold $155.90 worth of milk and $246.80 worth of butter, making a total of $602.20, besides supplying two families in butter and eggs and berries, and one in milk and the other one in milk part of the time.

Mr. Wm S Crane, of California, Md., suffered for years from rheumatism and lumbago. He was finally advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did and it effected a complete cure. For sale by Frisbie's Drug Store.

N. F. Murray, the apple grower, of Missouri, says that he visited a friend's orchard several years ago and found forty acres of magnificent trees bearing a fine crop of apples. The soil was all in sod, and he advised the owner to break the sod and cultivate the ground surface like a garden. The owner could not see why he should do this when he had just sold his crop of apples in the sod for $5,000. Mr. Murray finally convinced his friend that his orchard could not continue to produce such crops if left in the sod, and the result was that the ground was broken and thoroughly cultivated, and the next year the crop on that orchard sold for $12,000.

One of the experts of the Bureau of Forestry says: "Kentucky people are beginning to experience what Spain and Judea and other deforested countries have experienced, and that is torrential floods alternating with drought, and at the same time a diminished and fluctuating rainfall from the same general cause. A well wooded country is a well watered country. The removal of the forest works a change in a climate, there is less humidity and the extremes of heat and cold are more marked. If it be deforestry that is working the change for the worse in this region and causing the drouth—and there is every reason to believe that such is the fact—it behooves the people to turn and help their own prayer—that is by taking measures through legislation enactment and otherwise for the preservation of the forests."

Greatly in Demand.

Nothing is more in demand than a medicine which meets modern requirements for a blood and system cleanser, such as Dr. King's New Life Pills. They are just what you need to cure stomach and liver troubles. Try them at R. E. McRoberts' drug store, 25c, guaranteed. 1m

An examination for Common School diplomas will be held at my office in Lancaster, on the last Friday and Saturday in January, 27 and 28, 1905. E. L. Walker, County Supt.

Town Property For Rent.

I will rent my six room dwelling, situated on Danville street and give possession at once. House is in good repair. Place contains two acres. Mrs. Ellen Bettis.

The Bastin Telephone Company will receive bids for furnishing Locust or Cedar telephone poles in lots of 25 to 200 on Lancaster and Lexington pike between Clayton Arnold's and Bryantsville. For specifications, call at the office of Bastin Telephone Company at Lancaster.

Tonic to the System.

For liver troubles and constipation there is nothing better than DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little Pills. They do not weaken the stomach. Their action upon the system is mild, pleasant and harmless. Bob Moore, of LaFayette, Ind., says, "No use talking, DeWitt's Little Early Risers do their work. All other pills I've used gripe and make me sick in the stomach and never cured me. DeWitt's Little Early Risers proved to be the long sought after relief. They are simply perfect." Persons traveling find Little Early Risers the most reliable remedy to carry with them. Sold by R. E. McRoberts. *1m

The long-winded prayer often goes with a broken minded practice.

When hypocrites meet, the devil has time to eat.

Sickening, Shivering Fits of Ague and Malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine; of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to Quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. E. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Tex writes: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." At R. E. McRoberts' drugstore price 50c, guaranteed. 1m

A Prisoner in Her Own House.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001 Agnes ave., Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says, "Would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better, and at this time after using it for two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured. This remedy is for sale by Frisbie's Drug Store. 1m

EXCITING, BUT PLEASANT.

Experience of Confederate Soldier, in Garrard County, During the War.

The following article, printed in the Nashville American, refers to one of Garrard's most prominent and popular citizens, Col. B. F. Robinson. He received a letter, a few days ago, in which the writer expressed his happiness in finding the address of "Uncle Ben," and telling at length how much he appreciated the kindness of this popular and big-hearted old Garrardite. The article is as follows:

Autumn of 1862 was ideal and especially acceptable to the foot-sore soldiers of Gen. Bragg's army, as they had left Chattanooga to march across the States of Tennessee and Kentucky to meet Gen. Buell and Gen. Thomas at a point out of Louisville.

It was on this venture into Kyn-tucky, while we were in camp at Bryantown, a few miles from Perryville, and a short time before that great battle known as the "Battle of Perryville," —among others who came around our camp to see what a rebel soldier looked like was a Mr. Robinson, who claimed to be a Southern sympathizer, a farmer living only a few miles away. His visits were quite frequent and we got well acquainted. He invited Capt.
Cockrill and myself to come over and spend a night with him. As that section of Kentucky was very much mixed in sentiment we hesitated about risking it, besides before Bragg went up there the country was infested with roving bands of independent thieves and cut throats who claimed to be soldiers, and under that pretense committed all kinds of depredations, but while our army was there they were in hiding.

However, we concluded one noon to accept Mr. Robinson's invitation to spend a night with him. Although he had a brother, a man of high rank in the Federal army (Dick Robinson) we satisfied ourselves of the sincerity of our new friend and felt we would meet a welcome and protection, so far as he was concerned. So one beautiful day we scrubbed and brushed up ourselves as best we could and mounted our horses that were freshly groomed, and started out across the country to find Mr. Robinson's home. It was off the public road. The country was hilly and route quite bewildering to a stranger. We could not but think of bushwhackers and what an advantage such a section of country gave those inclined that way. The moon came out bright, the air was fresh and after some confusion we struck the road to our host's. A better feeling crept over us, and we soon found ourselves being welcomed by one evidently acquainted with the meaning of the phrase, "old Kentucky hospitality." He lived in a large two-story house, which was lighted up, and very soon we were presented to his family and received a welcome on all sides that put us at ease at once.

I will not attempt to describe the bountiful repast that awaited us in the supper room and it is needless to say that we were in a state to enjoy it. All went well and after doing full justice to everything before us, we were sitting upon the piazza with his family around. The moon was just doing its best to keep in pace with the delightful fall climate. We were listening to the many incidents of horror that had happened through that section and the mountainous district, a day's journey away before Gen.
Bragg's army had made its appearance.

I don't know exactly how Capt. Cockrill felt, but I must admit a feeling of indiscretion of helplessness came over me, inasmuch as we had left our arms in camp, and it was struggling parties like ours these fellows looked for, when all at once Mr. Robinson jumped up, listened, and then walked out in the yard, in front of his house, and coming back quickly said, "Gentlemen, I hear horses. Some one is coming this way. There are several and they are riding rapidly, too."

By this time the whole family was interested and none more so than myself. A thousands thoughts crowded across my mind, it seemed, all at once. Were we trapped, betrayed, giving or sold to the enemy? Our horses were stable, and to reach them we would have to go in the direction of the approaching party. Then if we were not betrayed and our host was true to us, it was our duty to stand by him in case of an invasion, but what good could we do? We had left our arms in camp out of respect to Mr. Robinson. There was nothing to do but face the enemy or take to the woods afloat.

While this was going on in our minds and Mr. Robinson and his family all alert and uneasily walking and watching down the lane that led up to the house, the very picture of concern.
Capt. Cockrill and I put on a bold front, stood in their midst and talked as coolly as our voices would allow. I could not resist the temptation to look over the back way out of the house in to the woods near by but took care to let no one suspicion what I was up to.
Never before did I so long for my side arms and censure myself, for allowing every respect to my host to induce me to leave them behind. I never before felt so helpless. The horses came in sight, not until they were almost at the front gate, and they came in a run.
"I was then my heart beat so hard that I was afraid Mr. Robinson's daughter or wife, standing close by, would hear it. The dust cleared away, when all at once two girls drew up, and throwing their reins to a young boy they had with them as an escort, jumped off their horses, and holding up their long riding skirts, came running in laughing, talking and crying all at once from the excitement of their venture.

I could have fallen down and worshipped them. I never wanted to embrace strangers as badly before. We were all greatly at ease quite soon, and after refreshing themselves, the girls were quickly in the parlor, and we were exchanging adventures, they telling how they got away from their homes in Lancaster about ten miles distant, to make this visit and be near the Southern army, and we telling them how they were scared us. One the leader, was a Miss Letcher, a near relative of Gov. Letcher, of Virginia and as might have been known, a dashing, tall, graceful young woman, full of patriotism and fire on all subjects, who deplored her sex not being allowed to join the army and become a Southern soldier. The other a cousin, if memory serve me right, and not quite so handsome—I have forgotten her name.
The two made a team to attract in any crowd. They had captured their young kinsman a mere boy, and well mounted, they led the way to Mr.
Robinson's (a friend of their family) by moonlight, riding furiously for ten miles.

Cards were introduced and we all collected around a table with a bright light hanging from the ceiling over head. It was our opportunity to scan the features of the new arrivals. I will not attempt particulars. It's enough to say Kentucky never fails in producing thoroughbreds, and this attempt was not an exception. "Miss Letcher was the star of either. She led in intelligent dash, looks and repartee, and from the way Capt. Cockrill held his cards, judging his trumps, turning red in the face and then white, I knew every minute that his props were giving way and that he had not only been surprised but captured—heart and body.

The truth is, these cards furnished no diversion. There was too much beauty and wit around there to do any thing of interest but look, listen and keep up our end of the line in conversation. It was a feast for us seldom encountered; as Capt. Cockrill said, "It was intoxicating."

It was late when we said good night.
It was an evening long to be remembered, and I know from the way Capt.
Cockrill kept squeezing my hand all night that he was still frightened or something else. We left next morning early, after making many promises to return and enroll both of the young ladies in the Southern army, each pertaining the artillery service with us.

Alas! Alas! Unfortunately orders came to advance, and then the memorable battle of Perryville is history, history with its many casualties and much suffering. Three more days and a retreat was sounded, which meant back across the State by way of Crab Orchard, Lancaster, Rock Castle Gap, into Tennessee again via Cumberland Gap. This route took us through Lancaster and as the sun rose and fell upon everything that sad but beautiful day with heads bowed in humiliation we cast our eyes about, and who should we see with hands waving and calling as we passed along the streets of Lancaster—many but none so beautiful as our newly-made young lady friends.
Lancaster was their home, and as Capt.
Cockrill held long and firmly the hand of one, the tears fell fast and furiously down his cheeks. "Twas then I knew that this time the cards were turned, and another capture had been made, and Miss Letcher was a prisoner. The meeting was brief, hardly time for pledges, as the enemy was pressing us, but looks spoke volumes. The order to forward had to be obeyed, I looked and Capt. Cockrill caught my eye, turned red behind the gills and waved a last long farewell. Such was the fate of war. We never met again.

Spilled Her Beauty.
Harriet Howard, of 209 W. 34th st., New York, at one time had her beauty spoiled with skin trouble. She writes:
"I had Salt Rheum or Eczema for years but nothing would cure it, until I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve." A quick and sure healer for cuts, burns and sores.

A Good Friend to Women.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed." The final test of friendship is deeds not words; not promises but performance. When Mrs. Ruff refers to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a good friend to women she speaks out of a wide experience of the merits of that medicine.
When her "life was hanging in the balance" it brought her back to health.
As Director of the German Orphan's Home
she has opportunity time and again to test its power in the cure of womanly diseases. As a result she says:
"Our great remedy for female troubles is Dr.
Pierce's Favorite Prescription. We have found nothing that would so quickly cure the disease, relieve inflammation and stop pain."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.
"Five years ago when my life was hanging in the balance, Dr. Pierce's are held as strictly private and the written confidences of women are guarded by the same strict professional privacy observed by Dr. Pierce and his staff in personal consultations with weak and sick women at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Address Dr. R. V.

the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

His Habit of Prayer.
"As far back as I can remember," said a wise and good man, "I had the habit of thanking God for everything I received, and of asking Him for everything I wanted. If I lost my book, or any of my playthings, I prayed that I might find it. I prayed walking along the streets, in school or out of school, whether playing or studying. I did this because it seemed natural to do so. I thought of God as everywhere present, full of kindness and love. Who would not be offended if children talked to Him."

That man was Dr. Charles Hodge, the distinguished scholar and preacher.
How happy all children would be if they were to talk with God as their father, which he did as a child, and have also the habit of thanking God.
Too often when our prayers are answered we forget to give God thanks.

Change Cars.
If you find yourself on the wrong road, get off, change cars and go the other way. The ticket to the Land of the Lost will not be accepted on the Through Limited to the Kingdom of the Sky.
The road is managed by a different corporation and the rates on the down grade will not carry you to the Celestial City.

FUN OF BEING SOCIABLE.
The Glum Man Who Found He Did Have Time to Pass the Pleasant Word.
"Sociability is all right," admitted Bugbee, "for those that have time. I'm too busy a man to indulge. A fellow that's given all day by business hasn't a minute to be sociable."

"Let's see about that," persisted Wil-ham. "You still take your constitutional from Massachusetts avenue to the office every morning, don't you?"
"Bound to," I'd be too nervous to sleep. There's the rub; if I took time to cultivate my fellow man, as you urge, I'd have to give up that walk."

"I'll prove that you can get the walk and the sociability, too. First, you'll meet the man mowing the lawn on the Commonwealth avenue parkway. You can manage to say: 'The top of the morning to you.' As you pass. He's a jovial Irishman, and his pity reply will keep you chuckling to yourself until you come to the cabmen in front of the Vendome."
"You take off your hat, as though you might be going to wipe your forehead, or maybe make a salute, and you say in a hearty tone: 'Aren't you lucky dogs to be able to ride everywhere, while common people like me have to walk?' See if they don't warm right up to you.
You'll still be rolling their juicy retort under your tongue when you come to the old man who scrubs the bases of the monuments of William Lloyd Garrison and Alexander Hamilton, every morning. You sing out as though you had known him all your life: 'Keep 'em looking like Spotless Town, eh?' and then stop and ask him, confidential like, why he does it. You'll laugh at his reply."

"As you cross Charles street by two peaches for a nickel of the salted-peanut and fruit man, and pass a cherry time o' day. Wave your hand to the children in the swan boats in the Public garden, feed the doves and squirrels on the Common, jolly the newsboys at Park street; and let me know how it comes out."

"Say, Wilham," the glum man who hadn't time to be sociable, informed his friend, as eager as a schoolboy, when they met for lunch, "I had two miles of sociability and got to the office on time.
That's a great receipt of yours. Say, the old clogger said he doesn't know why he scrubs Garrison and Hamilton, but s'posed it is just to please the boss."

A GIRL'S INFLUENCE.
It Is Greater Than They Realize—Confession of a Disappointed Lover.
This is how Bert came to tell it. His father had died after an illness of four years, and Bert, dressed in an ill-fitting black suit, was taking me to the funeral.
As we drove along on our way to the funeral, I noticed that he was lost in thought. The reins were held loosely in his hands, while his eyes wandered dreamily across the river at our side to the hills beyond, radiant in the soft beauty of the summer morning. "He is thinking of the dead," thought I; "let the silence be sacred."
"So Mabel is married," he said, at last.
Mabel was the pretty district schoolteacher whom I had married to a thrifty young farmer two weeks before.

"Yes," I replied, startled by his remark, "they were married at the parsonage."

After a slight pause he said:
"I loved her, elder, but I ought to have known she was too good for me." I waited for him to continue.
"She made me a Christian, Mabel did.
I used to drive over to W— with her to hear you preach, and on our way home she would talk to me about the Christian life. One Sunday night she got me to decide. I gave up tobacco, too, for her," he went on. "It was awful hard, for I smoked all the time. The first night I was so afraid the boys would ask me where my pipe was that I went to bed as soon as I'd done my chores.
But I knew it would please her. I don't smoke now. I hope she's got a good husband that'll be kind to her."

Tears were in his eyes. He brushed them hastily away with the back of his hand, as if they were unworthy of him.
I looked away from him to the hills across the river, for my own eyes were strangely dimmed. Bert again broke the silence:
"I tell you, elder, these girls don't know what they can do. It's a shame so many of 'em don't half try."—Ram's Horn.

Favorite Prescription was brought to my home," writes Mrs. Caroline Ruff, Director of German Orphan's Home, residing at 339 Kowna Street, Detroit, Mich. "I took it, and, like a brave friend, it fought the battle against disease and won me back to health. Ever since then I have been its firm friend.
We frequently have mothers come to our 'Home' who are suffering with uterine troubles, inflammation, tumors and ulcerations. Our great remedy for all female trouble is Dr.
Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and we have found nothing so far which would so quickly cure disease, relieve inflammation, and stop pains. It is a good friend to women."

forth the richest and deepest and sweetest things in man's nature. Read all other books—philosophy, poetry, history, fiction—but if you would refine the judgment, fertilize the reason, wing the imagination, attain unto the finest womanhood or the sturdiest manhood, read this book, reverently and prayer-fully, until its truths have dissolved like iron into the blood. If you have no time, make time and read. The book Daniel Webster placed under his pillow when dying is the book all should carry in the hand while living.—Newell D. Hillis.

Apprenticed.
Johnny—Papa, what does it mean to be apprenticed?
Papa—It means the binding one person to another by agreement. The person so bound has to teach the other all he can of his trade or profession, whilst the other has to watch and learn how things are done and to make himself useful in every way possible.
Johnny—Then I suppose you're apprenticed to ma, ain't you, dad?—Tit-Bits.

Where Wealth Is Despised.
Fashionable Tailor—Go front at once.
Two young clerks there after suits.
New Man (whispering)—I'm waiting on a millionaire.
"Leave him and attend to the clerks.
These millionaires don't buy new clothes once in five years. A clerk is good for a fresh suit every three months."
—N. Y. Weekly.

Fashion's Thorny Path.
Mrs. Sassetti—My dear, I wish you'd take time during the day to look up Mr. Hightone's standing in Bradstreet's. Now, don't forget.
Mrs. S.—What's the matter?
Mrs. S.—We have been invited to Mrs. Hightone's reception, and I want to know whether to accept or not.—N.
Y. Weekly.

The Test of Excellence.
Miss Flittely—Really, I think this theater is the finest in the city.
Her Father—Why—er—quite a few complain that its acoustic properties are poor.
Miss Flittely—Perhaps—but just think! There are four great big mirrors in the lobby and three in the foyer—

As a salve that heals without a scar DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. No remedy effects such speedy relief. It draws out inflammation, soothes, cools and heals all cuts, burns and bruises. A sure cure for Piles and skin diseases.
DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve. Beware of counterfeits, they are dangerous. Sold by R. E. Mc-Roberts. 1m

teacher whom I had married to a thrifty young farmer two weeks before.

"Yes," I replied, startled by his remark, "they were married at the parsonage."

After a slight pause he said:
"I loved her, elder, but I ought to have
known she was too good for me."
